

THE DENVER POST
we are colorado™

January 4, 2010

To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to supply this letter of recommendation on behalf of Neshama Abraham Paiss, as she pursues her freelance writing career.

Over the course of a year, Neshama has supplied The Denver Post with quality writing for its Going Green section – a quarterly publication that is circulated in the Sunday Denver Post. As editor of Going Green, I have been repeatedly impressed with Neshama's work, and hope to continue to call on her skills for all future Going Green sections.

Neshama is a consummate professional. She adheres to deadlines, interviews people involved with the stories and when possible, provides pertinent photos and artwork. Neshama has unceasingly shown that she can be trusted to deliver high caliber work on time, which is something a newspaper staff truly appreciates.

It is my hope that Neshama is considered for any and all freelance writing opportunities that may come her way.

Sincerely,

Erin Behrenhausen
Editor of Going Green, quarterly publication of The Denver Post

Email: ebehrenhausen@denverpost.com
Tel: 303-954-1869